She grew up in a staunchly Brahmin family with her widowed mother and father. Having faced so much prejudice, Rajnandani seeks out love and starts building a new life. Plot The story starts with Rajnandani saying her life is a series of events that were shaped and ruled by her family and the customs of her community. She is a simple, conservative and obedient girl living in a Brahmin family. Her father, Shambhu, has just returned from Calcutta where he had to get his daughter married. He tries to convince his daughter to marry the local goonda, Sunil, to avoid the humiliation that will come to him. Her mother, Alaka, is also happy to marry her daughter to a goonda. Rajnandani believes in a life full of restrictions, which is not acceptable to her. So she plans to run away and find a better life for herself. She decides to go to Calcutta to make her debut in the musical industry as a playback singer.
